A committee will reconvene within two weeks to finalize an updated Memorandum of Understanding and establish a master agreement with the city for collaborative projects. There was also a discussion about the need for city representation on the committee following Dan McKinney's retirement. A Memorandum of Understanding for Radford Community Fest will be circulated within the next two weeks. Once the MOU is drafted the committee will meet and review any changes needed for the Community Fest.

III. CoGen project & campus projects

Rob Hoover presented a comprehensive update on the CoGen project, which aims to convert excess steam into energy, thereby reducing waste in electrical production. The construction is expected to be completed by October 1, 2026, with operations expected in early 2027. Negotiations for an interconnect agreement with the city and the purchase of transformers for campus service are ongoing. Radford University's intent is that any savings from the project could be reinvested into campus infrastructure and mutually beneficial initiatives for the university and the city. The dollar amount has not yet been identified nor the specific initiatives yet.

Renovation plans for Dalton were discussed, with the main dining facilities set to relocate to the lower level of Muse Hall, and construction expected to start soon, aiming for a reopening in spring 2029. The architect for the project is Baskerville from Richmond. Additionally, the Buchanan House is slated for demolition this spring.

Rob Hoover added that the project across from the HUB should be completed by spring and will include laying slabs for picnic tables and landscaping.

IV. Branding update

Branding efforts were outlined by David Perryman with Radford University's Strategic Marketing and Communications division, including collaboration with Rob Hoover's team for light pole banners and a phased approach to branding rollout, aiming for completion by June 1. Plans for co-branding design efforts with the city were discussed, along with the need for a comprehensive sponsorship approach.
